Coronavirus Update: New Cases in Plano

From Collin County: "You'll notice a "swing" in recovered COVID-19 cases today. Today's numbers are a correction from June 10 and 11, when the State started flagging recovered cases, and we didn't recognize a new "case closed" field that they had employed; so, 436 more patients have recovered than we previously reported on our dashboard. When the dashboard updated at 3:30 PM today, the recovered cases went up and active cases fell accordingly to correct our oversight -- not the state's. The numbers of positive cases, daily new positives, deaths and hospitalizations were unaffected by this, and are accurate."
